I am the author of eleven books, including The Wines of the South of France; Treading Grapes, Walking through the Vineyards of Tuscany and The Wines of New Zealand. My most recent book was a new look at the subject of my very first book, Chablis and the Wines of the Grand Auxerrois. In addition I write for various magazines, such as Decanter, Quarterly Review of Wines and Sommelier India. I also update the south of France for Hugh Johnson's Pocketbook and contribute the sections on Languedoc-Roussillon and Vins de Pays for The Wine Report, as well as writing a blog on the Languedoc: www.tastelanguedoc.blogspot.com

I was one of the first women to pass the Master of Wines examinations back in 1979, and worked in the wine trade for nine years before becoming a freelance wine writer. I was Chairman of the Circle of Wine Writers for six years and am now one of the Circle's two Vice-presidents.
